

Table of Contents

Preface.....	7
Chapter I – Past and future of lightweight structures Jan B. Obrębski	9
Chapter II – FEM estimation of load bearing capacity of the thin-walled profile used for fixing ventilated facades in frame of large deformation theory Cezary Ajdukiewicz, Marcin Gajewski, Ewa Szeliga, Michał Kucharski	21
Chapter III – Corrosion of light thin-walled beams made of stainless steel Aniela Glinicka, Katarzyna Wasilewska	41
Chapter IV – Thin-walled profiles in temporary steel halls Ryszard Walentyński, Monika Siwek	51
Chapter V – Nonlinear teaching models in developing structural intuition of architecture student Jerzy Łątka, Romuald Tarczewski	61
Chapter VI – Elastic waves of a polyconvex hyperelastic model Aleksander Łukasz Franus, Stanisław Jemioło, Włodzimierz Domański	83
Chapter VII – New challenges behind the generalized stochastic perturbation technique in structural mechanics Marcin Kamiński	93
Chapter VIII – Eigenmode analysis at self-stress state of a quadruplex tensegrity tower Andrzej Rutkiewicz, Leszek Małyszko	107
Chapter IX – Dynamical response of the cable under the wind load Irena Gołębiowska, Maciej Dutkiewicz	121
Chapter X – Simple class of slightly compressible hyperelastic material models Stanisław Jemioło, Aleksander Łukasz Franus	135
Chapter XI – Implementation of a slightly compressible hyperelastic material model in ABAQUS/Standard Antoni Marek, Aleksander Łukasz Franus, Stanisław Jemioło	149
Chapter XII – Remarks on experimental shearing of wood Aneta Skoratko, Andrzej Rutkiewicz	165
Chapter XIII – Experiments of modal identification tests of masonry structures Edyta Kowalska, Piotr Bilko, Marlena Anna Jurczak	177

Chapter XIV – Examples of roving hammer tests and FEM calculation to identify modal characteristics of lightweight plates
Marlena Anna Jurczak, Leszek Małyszko	187
Chapter XV – Support structures for telecommunications in Poland in context of the future 5G implementation
Jacek Szafran	197